

behind vertical posts. Mr. Salem urged the committee to consider modifications to display the bricks more respectfully.

Mr. Noble acknowledged that this issue had been discussed previously, and the city had re-etched the stones. He explained that major modifications to the park were difficult due to the original artistic design, but smaller changes might be possible, such as placing blank stones near posts and rearranging others for better visibility.

The committee discussed potential solutions, with Mr. Reiner explaining the history of the park design process and the limitations of modifying an artist's design that had won awards. Several ideas were suggested, including a concrete belt to display the bricks at an angle and changing the color of the bricks to make them more visible.

STAFF COMMENTS

Ms. Blake introduced Mara Hunter, a Management Analyst with the City, who will become the new staff liaison to the Veterans Advisory Committee. Ms. Hunter shared her background, noting she started with the city in April, previously worked for the City of Gahanna, and graduated from law school in 2024. She is a Dublin resident who currently supports the development department and finance team.

Ms. Blake thanked Mr. Noble for presenting to City Council about the Veterans Advisory Committee's activities over the past year, noting that Council members were impressed with the committee's work.

ROUNDTABLE

During roundtable comments, Council Member Reiner thanked the committee for their service and announced a celebration on December 15 at 6:00 PM to thank all those who have contributed to making Dublin a great city over the years and to honor his service as a Council Member.

Mr. Clifton shared information about two upcoming initiatives: a monthly veteran mental health peer support program at OSU Wexner Center Medical Center Dublin, and plans for a community viewing of a Netflix documentary titled "End Waves and War" followed by a panel discussion on veteran mental health resources.

Mr. Noble reminded the committee about the upcoming Military Roundtable event and encouraged members to attend.

ADJOURNMENT

The meeting was adjourned at 5:22 p.m.
